THE REALISTS

"Demaree Bess, reporting an interview with Vidkun Quisling, Norway's 'Fuehrer,' for the Saturday Evening Post, says the man whose name has become a synonym for treachery has no misgivings. He believes he is behaving like a realist; that Germany is the coming country and he has climbed aboard the bandwagon, as it were.

"This realistic behavior business gets almost too thick to stir sometimes. Superficially, today's realists are the dominant political groups of Germany, Italy, Japan and the several minor nations whose wagons have been hitched to the totalitarian star. All others are idealists, fuddy-duddies, or decadent democrats, according to the realists.

As Robert Sherwood, the playwright, sometimes has pointed out, the authoritarians really are nothing more or less than the illusory triumph of efficiency applied to politics, something like the triumph of mass production in industry. For it might be said, authoritarianism is literal-mindedness gone haywire. Everything has been figured out as though human beings were automatons.

The shortcoming of the Quislings, who think the "smar" thing to do is to get on the side with the greater array of "realism" is their failure to understand that the ultimate realism is concerned with things infinitely more complex than the superficial orderliness and apparent efficiency of authoritarian societies.

One of those things, perhaps the essential thing that makes men different from sheep, is their instinctive revolt against overdoes of realism. Mr. Bess says Quisling admits readily that he is having trouble lining up support for himself in Norway, but apparently it never occurred to him that Norwegians as a whole may resist Hitlerism because they are more, not less, realistic than he is.

UNPLEASANTLY VAGUE

It is not easy to imagine that congress willingly will hand the executive department a blank check for aid to countries fighting the good fight. That isn't the congressional way.

The tentative draft of the bill declaring such aid to be official policy, it is said, contains no sums, but would authorize whatever future appropriations may be required from time to time. Thus, congress would retain control of the policy; by refusing to vote a new appropriation it could change the policy at will.

But because it would leave disposition of the money up to the executive, congressional opposition may be expected. It will be proposed, in all probability, that congress should appropriate so much money for Britain, so much for China, so much for Greece and so on. The alternative, critics will say, is unpleasantly vague.

However, it must be plain by this time that what the United States is trying to do is give the military powers something to think about. It wants Hitler, Mussolini and associates to wonder how much assistance will be forthcoming from Washington. It is playing their own game of keeping the other fellow guessing.

The idea is to make the amount of aid unpleasantly vague to the governments which have been able to figure out everything, except what the United States is prepared to do. Under the circumstances, it looks like one place where the congressional way of doing things probably could be suspended without doing any irreparable harm.

FIXED COST ITEMS

As all old hands know and most new hands soon find out, there is no practical way to cut the cost of government. It is a major triumph just to keep it from going higher year by year.

This is due to the fact that almost everything about government is a fixed cost item, as President Roosevelt has pointed out on those occasions when economists like Sen. Taft managed to get into his hair. The debt costs so much, pensions cost so much, congress says so much, loans to farmers, the navy costs so much and so on—e pluribus unum.

A new fixed cost item now seems to be fastening itself on the budget—work relief. With employment increasing by leaps and bounds, the budget for the next fiscal year specifies $995,000,000 for work relief, about a third of a billion less than the current appropriation of $975,000,000 plus a request for a supplementary appropriation of $350,000,000. This amounts to saying that the fixed cost of work relief, all else being favorable, is now estimated at about a billion dollars a year. As President Roosevelt said in transmitting the budget to congress, "some people cannot be fitted into the employment picture."

It is noteworthy that the people under discussion still are nominally employable, however, and thus entitled to work relief under the existing plan of making the federal government responsible for employables and local and state government responsible for unemployables.

PICTORIAL EVIDENCE

Perhaps nothing is more encouraging to a wayward patriot almost convinced his country is defenseless than the really splendid pictures the news services have been taking to prove the contrary. It is as though having watched confidence in the quantity and quality of United States armament being torn down, the army and navy were doing everything in their power to build it from the ground up.

It may be assumed that lining up airplanes in straight rows fading into infinity is not something the army, for instance, does for fun. Or that the navy goes to the trouble of lining up mines, unless there's a photographer in the office. Or that photographers just happen to be strolling past when big guns get fired. All these things are prearranged; they all take a deal of doing, as the saying is.

Understand, there's no objection. The same sort of thing was done in Germany for years before war started. There were pictures of tanks row on row and airplanes and goose-stepping soldiers—everything it takes to make war in a big way. It wasn't the photographers' fault that when Germany rolled over its victims the startled statesmen screamed, "Why didn't someone tell us these things?" It had all been in the newspapers.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, January 12

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries for surprising, perhaps sensational, events, these descending with whirlwind effect, tearing the accustomed order from its staid and true foundations, and possibly reaching happily far into the future with telling and dramatic denouements. The personal, emotional and intellectual life are primarily effected, with probably romance, drama and spectacular climax.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of unpredictable and unforgettable events, sudden, surprising and precipitate, accompanied by complete uprooting, breathtaking experiences, with thrilling, dramatic and romantic adventures which may take them to distant but exceedingly happy lands. Or such benign accomplishments might be put between the leaves of a book or play.

A child born on this day will be extraordinarily talented, with great creative ability, which may take form in adventure, invention, drama, romance of a sensational or spectacular character. It may shine in the public eye.

For Monday, January 13

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a rather perplexing one, with many indications of success and progress of a peculiar, unexpected or unorthodox order though also hinting of problems of a public or business nature which may require much tact and finesse as well as astuteness to compose. Be discreet in speech and writings and be conservative and watchful with funds; shun strife.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of peculiar, subtle or irregular situations which, while not disastrous, may take much foresight, cleverness, circumspection with conservation of resources to win success. There may be opposition, duplicity, agitation or quarrels to compose, mainly by keeping firm leash on tongue and temper. Saeguard funds as well.

A child born on this day may be restless, irritable, unsettled, and prodigal, although have certain unusual traits and talents of promise. It may be quick-witted, artistic a mighty good traveling companion.

With eggs selling at 82 cents a dozen in England, the old urge to raise chickens returns.

MEDICINE PREPARING FOR DEFENSE

Dr. Clendening Discusses Doctors' Part In Program

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I have just been discussing with certain officials the preparations that are being made by the National Research Council for Medical Preparedness about our defense preparations, and I wish to state so far as my opinion carries any weight with the public, that I feel these preparations are being made in a very thorough and far-sighted manner. I also happen to know that the preparations are very accurate, and while publicity has been suppressed for obvious reasons, the committees are all working actively and making good progress.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Naturally the work has to be divided and a mere enumeration of the committees which indicates the work they are doing will show how widely planned the work is. There is, for instance, a Committee on Infectious Diseases which has set up consultant groups for possible epidemics of influenza, pneumonia, meningitis, measles, etc.; a Committee on Tropical Diseases presages the possibility of our occupation of tropical areas. There is a Committee on Transfusions. The very important technical point which this committee must decide is to make available material for blood transfusions in large amounts at any given point. In order to do this, blood banks must be prepared and collections made of serum, which often does as much good as whole blood.

Many Different Committees

There are Committees on Heart Disease, Tuberculosis, Nutrition, Diet, Surgery, Anesthesia, X-ray, a Committee on Methods to Facilitate Wound Healing, which will be made available in every hospital and base hospital.

Every branch of medicine and surgery has a sub-committee which has control of special problems.

An extremely important committee is that on Aviation Medicine.

It has been said that the Germans and the English are far ahead of the United States in research on aviation problems. The great problem at the moment of writing is the so-called "blackout" which results from rapid diving, but I think I can say of my own knowledge that progress is being made in this field and that American research on the subject has not only received at first hand all the research material which the English have accumulated but also it has made many independent advances of its own.

Experienced Medical Men

The members who have been placed on these committees are all known to me by reputation, and many of them personally, and I feel that no better selections could have been made. They are all men of wide experience in their field, many of whom have made important contributions to medical science and all of whom have had practical experience with the actual conditions over which they have jurisdiction.

I feel a great deal of satisfaction as an American in these arrangements. If the other details of national defense are being handled as efficiently and are going forward as rapidly, we have no grounds for fear.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

V. W. C.: "What would cause the palms of one's hands to perspire constantly? Is it connected in any way with severe persistent headaches?"

Answer: In most instances this is simply a manifestation of nervousness or instability of the circulation. It may occur in thyroid disease. The fact that it is connected with headaches would indicate that it is mostly nervous in origin. The less you think about it, the better, because it has no serious significance.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to

Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Motorists Actually See House Square In Road

HADDONFIELD, N. J.—That old motorist gag about finding a tree or a house in the middle of the highway became a reality at Haddonfield when amazed drivers did see a house in the middle of the road.

The dwelling, a convent, was being moved from one site to another a block away when the timbers gave way. The house remained in the middle of the road overnight, and the mums remained in the house.

NEW YORK — Perishable foods such as fish, lobster and oysters are being transported from the Atlantic seaboard to the West in portable refrigerator units the size of a large trunk which maintains an even temperature for a week. The new contraption is the invention of Major Elihu Church.

VERMILLION, S. D.—Archaeological remnants of 350 of South Dakota's prehistoric Indians are on exhibit at the State University museum. Skulls and skeletons, with thousands of bone and stone artifacts, were excavated from old Indian village sites along the Missouri river.

This will be the first Sunday after Epiphany.

Announcements follow:

Sunday school, 9:45 a. m. (St. Luke 14:1-14). Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

The teaching of Christ is very definite about the value of persons and individuals. He never allowed the most cherished of institutions to be made supreme over human beings. He would not consent to the exploitation of human strength and life. Machines and customs must step aside for the interest of human beings. Jesus was always pointing to the spirit of the law and not the letter of it. He put people before property. There was such a valuation of personality that our modern civilization is even only now coming nearer to the principles of Christ. Progress has been made. The Gospel of Christ still points the way.

Morning worship, 11 a. m.

When hate and jealousy are so widespread in the world, it is refreshing to meditate upon the love of God. This feeling of God for mankind has not wavered nor weakened as the centuries of time have passed away. The interest and concern of God for the world have arisen from His love that existed from the beginning. The rebellions of mankind have not cancelled this affection which carries on in spite of unfriendly response. Love is not impossible where there are reasons and causes for its presence. God's love for the world exists in spite of the rejections and wayward ways of much of the world.

Rev. John Bauman's sermon subject for the morning worship service at the Emmanuel American Lutheran church Sunday is, "The Lost Christ."

On the road of life you will find this a mighty good traffic rule: Whenever you meet temptation or evil—turn to the right. And every Lord's day you help to avoid eternal disaster by heeding the Sabbath right of way: Come to Church and Sunday school.

Church schedule follows:

The Sunday school with classes for all ages meets at 9 a. m. The Adult Bible class meets at 9:15 a. m. Lee Schaefer, superintendent.

Live Peaceably

"On the tree of Christian living no fruit is more attractive to the eye nor sweeter to the heart than living peaceably with all men. It is undoubtedly one of the greatest arts. That such an art is difficult to execute is reasonable. But its achievement is not beyond the ability of the Christian. One of my aged professors used to say that in order to get along in this world of men it is necessary to take two bears with you wherever you were—one was to "bear" the other to "forebear."

"If we will train ourselves in the arts of patience, willingness, and kindly readiness to bear our load and do our bit, much will be achieved to peaceable living."

"On the other hand, tolerance, understanding, sympathy, and self-control need to be fostered toward the unreasonable of others. In simpler language, if we will school ourselves in the life of getting along with others and are willing to pay the price, we shall have the happy reward."

Christian Science Lists Announcements

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson sermon, which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science society tomorrow. The Sunday service is also broadcast over station WCLE (610 kl), Cleveland, the first and third Sundays of each month at 11 a. m.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years is held at 9:30 a. m.

The midweek service will be held the first Wednesday of each month at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all" (11 Corinthians 13:14).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our pass-over is sacrificed for us: . . . Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth" (1 Corinthians 5:7,8).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christianity as Jesus taught it was not a creed, nor a system of ceremonies, nor a special gift from a ritualistic Jehovah; but it was the demonstration of divine Love casting out error and healing the sick, not merely in the name of Christ, or Truth, as must be the case in the cycles of divine light" (p. 135).

This society maintains a reading room at 136 So. Broadway, where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday.

South American Way

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE "friendly neighbor" theme is sweeping the fashion world like mad, with the result that we're all going to be running around done up in the best South American trends this spring.

The Conga and the Rhumba spirit has taken over the dress salons as well as the dance floors, so you might as well prepare yourself to adopt some old Spanish customs.

Everything from beach clothes to street dresses shows the South American touch these days, and vivid colors are the order of the day.

You'll be seeing fringed sashes, boleros and flat Spanish sailors (hats, my pet, not members of the Navy) on all sides soon, and you'll like them, too.

From Buenos Aires and Rio, from Trinidad and Haiti come the inspirations for the new "good neighbor" trend. So brush up on your Spanish, get a pair of castanets, and behave like a gay caballero.

The dress sketched at left is of navy blue woolen with Spanish bolero slashed with scarlet, worn with a hat of navy felt, stitched in red.

BODICE FATTERING IN NEW DRESS

You'll "cut a fine figure" wherever you go—in this beautifully designed afternoon dress. It's an Anne Adams creation, Pattern 4680, and it will make you look slimmer than you ever thought possible! A skillful, tiny-waisted illusion is given by the panelled bodice which forms two slenderizing points at the front waist- seam. Tiny buttons sewn down the center seam serve to "break-up" your width-across. The simply-cut skirt has just enough fullness for perfect freedom. Make your sleeves short, with decorative tucks and single scallops, or have them long or three-quarter length. For a "dress-up" style, use a filmy printed sheer; for an all-around frock, dark crepe or soft wool is just the thing!

Pattern 4680 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 2½ yards 39 inch fabric and 2½ yards lace edging.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins for the Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly: SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Are you too tall? Too short? Too plump? Too slim? If you are irregularly proportioned in any way, let the ANNE ADAMS PERFECT FOUNDATION PATTERN

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

Hannah discreetly withdrew and Ted made a move to take Dorothy into his arms, but she drew back and the joyous light died out of her eyes. In an altered tone, she said:

"Your mother will be pleased. She has been very worried."

"I know. I've been a fool. But it isn't Mother I'm thinking of. It's you, Dorothy, I'm terribly ashamed of myself. I—"

"Ted, please. Let's not go into that."

"But I want to make you see what I was up against; why I went away. I couldn't think straight, Dorothy; I was at my wit's end; I had too much to decide. But I've made up my mind now. I can't live without you, Dorothy, and I've come to tell you so."

Dorothy was silent for a moment. When she looked up there were tears in her eyes.

"It's too late, Ted. Nothing can ever be the same again for us after that Sunday when I waited for you in the orchard and you didn't come."

"But, don't you see, darling, I—"

"I see that you didn't love me the way I wanted to be loved. The way father loved mother. Nothing could have kept him from her. Nothing. Marrying her meant that he would be penniless but he did not hesitate for a moment. You did. You were afraid I'd cost you your career and you took a whole week to make up your mind that I was worth it. I'm sorry, Ted, terribly sorry."

With a sob, she darted up to her room.

To the Osbornes, the weeks that followed were like a long drawn out nightmare. The boy Peter was glad when vacation ended and the first day of the new school term dawned. The once cheerful atmosphere of his home had changed completely.

Temper were on edge.... everyone wanted to be alone.... no one would play with him, not even Marjory. He had spent most of his waking time for weeks moping about the house, feeling thoroughly miserable, and it was with a light heart that he started for school.

"Pete" went to school in Bradbury. By taking an early bus he was able to be in the playground a full half-hour before classes began. Usually this half-hour was passed swiftly in a game with other early birds, but this morning when Peter arrived, bursting with eagerness to see his friends again, he found the boys clustered near the gate, talking so excitedly that they were not aware of his approach.

"We ought to get up what they call a round robin," he heard one of them say, "and take it to the headmaster."

"Hello, fellas," said Peter cheerfully. "What's a round robin, Dick?"

There was an uncomfortable silence. The boys looked at him so oddly that Peter flushed. "What's up?" he asked.

"You have lots of nerve, showing up this morning!" retorted Brooks. "I told you he would, fellows."

"What on earth are you talking about?" Peter stammered. "Why shouldn't I turn up? What's wrong with all of you?"

"I'll tell you what! My father says it isn't fair to expect us to mix with you—so now you know!"

"My family's as good as yours—and better!"

"Oh, is it? Well, your father or some of you killed your aunt!"

For an awful moment Peter thought he was going to be sick. There seemed to be nothing at all where his stomach used to be. He began to tremble at the knees. The mocking faces of the other boys seemed to melt into each other, to waver dizzily before his eyes.

"That's a lie!" he cried, his lips trembling.

"It's true! I read it!"

"So did I!" shouted another boy. "Your father's a murderer," sneered Dick Brooks, encouraged by this support. "A murderer, that's what he is!"

"Take that back," gasped Peter, clenching his fists, "or I'll—"

"Yeh! What'll you do? Strangle me with a scarf, I s'pose? Go on, cry-baby! Look, fellows, he's crying!"

Peter hit him squarely on the mouth and a trickle of blood ran down Dick's chin. An exciting shout rose from the other boys: "A fight! a fight!" as they crowded around to see the fun.

"Sack him, Dick!"

"I'll bet he killed her himself!"

With a sob, Peter flung himself on his tormentors, lashing out right and left at their gloating faces. For a moment they stood their ground; then terror gripped them, inspired by Peter's wild eyes, grinding teeth, and furious blows. They fled in all directions.

Brooks ran as quickly as any of them but he tripped and fell; Peter sprawled on top of him, pummeling him with all his might. Nothing was left in Peter's frenzied mind but the desire to hurt, to hurt. He had Dick by the throat and was banging his head on the ground when a teacher came on the scene, grabbed him by the collar, and dragged him, kicking and struggling, off his howling victim.

Peter could give no coherent account of what had happened; and the other boys made up false stories of the fight. He came home in the middle of the morning, his face streaked with tears and livid with still-bubbling anger. He brought a note addressed to his father in which the school principal politely regretted that it had been necessary to suspend him for a term "in consequence of a savage and unwarranted attack on another boy."

At dusk that evening Hannah came to her mistress with a troubled look on her homely face.

"It's Miss Marjory, ma'am," she said anxiously. "The child's just come home and when I opened the door for her, she ran straight upstairs to her room with tears streaming down her cheeks. I followed her to find out what was wrong but she won't tell me anything. She's lying on her bed, poor lamb, sobbing as though her heart's breaking!"

When Mrs. Osborne went up, Marjory threw herself upon her and clutched her as tightly as though she could never bear to let her go. The girl's slim body was shaking convulsively, wracked from head to foot by great shuddering sobs.

"Oh, Mummy!" she gasped. "Mummy!"

Edith had to bite her lips until she drew blood to keep back her own tears. She drew Marjory on to her lap and nursed and petted her as she had not done for many years.

"Oh, Mummy, the girls— If you could only have heard them—"

"Hush, my darling, hush! It's over now. You shan't go back. You'll never have to see them again."

Gently, Edith undressed the trembling child and put her to bed. She sat on the bed stroking Marjory's forehead, until the girl was lulled to sleep. When Edith tiptoed out of the room, she met Hannah on the landing.

"Master Peter's been sick, ma'am."

"Hannah, Hannah, what am I to do?"

"The Lord only knows, ma'am! I'd like to get my hands on these murdering little blackguards. I'd learn 'em to go teasin' the life out of the boy with their lies and sneers."

"They were only boys like Peter, Hannah. That's the strange thing about it all. These people who are hurting us, they're—they're just people, people like ourselves. They're not wicked, only very thoughtless, and cruel."

Stephen was waiting for Edith in the hall. There were deep lines of worry under his eyes.

"Michael is in the dining-room," he said in a low tone. "He has something to say to me. I thought you'd better hear it as well."

Edith's heart sank. More trouble. She ought to have expected it, she realized bitterly; she ought to have known better than imagine that her children could take up their lives again as though nothing had happened.

She squeezed her husband's arm.

Stephen was waiting for Edith in the hall. There were deep lines of worry under his eyes.

"Michael is in the dining-room," he said in a low tone. "He has something to say to me. I thought you'd better hear it as well."

Edith's heart sank. More trouble. She ought to have expected it, she realized bitterly; she ought to have known better than imagine that her children could take up their lives again as though nothing had happened.

She squeezed her husband's arm.

him with all his might. Nothing was left in Peter's frenzied mind but the desire to hurt, to hurt. He had Dick by the throat and was banging his head on the ground when a teacher came on the scene, grabbed him by the collar, and dragged him, kicking and struggling, off his howling victim.

Peter could give no coherent account of what had happened; and the other boys made up false stories of the fight. He came home in the middle of the morning, his face streaked with tears and livid with still-bubbling anger. He brought a note addressed to his father in which the school principal politely regretted that it had been necessary to suspend him for a term "in consequence of a savage and unwarranted attack on another boy."

At dusk that evening Hannah came to her mistress with a troubled look on her homely face.

"It's Miss Marjory, ma'am," she said anxiously. "The child's just come home and when I opened the door for her, she ran straight upstairs to her room with tears streaming down her cheeks. I followed her to find out what was wrong but she won't tell me anything. She's lying on her bed, poor lamb, sobbing as though her heart's breaking!"

When Mrs. Osborne went up, Marjory threw herself upon her and clutched her as tightly as though she could never bear to let her go. The girl's slim body was shaking convulsively, wracked from head to foot by great shuddering sobs.

VARIETY SPICE OF CHICNESS IN MODERN WARDROBE

Anna Neagle, well-dressed English motion picture actress, believes that anyone can wear any type of dress if she goes about it the right way. Variety is the spice of smartness in clothes, in Miss Neagle's estimation. At the moment she is very fond of boleros, and in the three pictures above she is shown wearing three different types of that kind of costume. At left she is shown in a peasantlike bolero frock designed by Edward Stevenson. It is made of bright royal blue pique with white blouse peppered with blue dots; a gay new touch is the use of white trim. Center she shows a dashing travel outfit in royal purple wool. The frock is slim and straight, the brief bolero is purple and lilac plaid with faint pink stripe, and the revers reveal the purple facing. The hat is purple felt trimmed with lilac grosgrain ribbon and pheasant feathers. The third is a dinner dress in lemon yellow and brilliant jewelers' blue. When the Eton jacket is slipped off the bodice becomes the decollete top of a low-waisted, bouffant evening gown in heavy cotton.

And Then Death Came to Him

Death was lurking in this group when the photographer snapped the picture in Helsinki, Finland, recently. President Kyösti Kallio, right, bidding goodbye to Field Marshal Baron Carl G. Mannerheim, left, and President-elect Risto Ryti, center, collapsed in Mannerheim's arms a moment later and died soon after. Ryti had been elected president of the Finnish nation a short time earlier.

Alliance Outclasses Quakers, 44 To 32; Reserves Win Fifth

Locals Play On Even Terms With Flashy Rivals After Disastrous First Quarter

Salem's First-Period Relapse Gives Aviators Deciding 18-7 Advantage; Game Marked With Numerous Fouls; Zone Defense Stalls Quakers

Salem High cagers were handed their fifth defeat in seven starts last night when the Alliance Aviators outclassed the local passers to win by a 44 to 32 count on the local court. Quaker Reserves, however, registered their fifth straight win, beating the Aviator Reserves, 37 to 24.

After getting off to a bad start, trailing 18-7 at the end of the first period, the Quakers played on even terms with the visitors for the remainder of the game but the first-quarter edge was enough to give the Aviators the victory.

The Salem lads were continually stalled by their opponents stout zone defense. Practically all of the local points were made on long shots from near mid-floor. Only once or twice was the ball ever successfully worked into the pivot men.

The Aviators, aided by plenty of height, had little trouble penetrating the Salem defense. The Red and Blue flippers also took advantage of the Quakers' slow-breaking attack to intercept numerous passes and turn them into points.

Jenkins, Alliance Negro forward, lived up to his reputation as a sharpshooter by sinking seven field goals to lead the Aviators over points. Bulkiner, lanky pivot man, collected 11 markers for the visitors, nine of which were from the foul line. Both of these lads played the entire last half with three fouls marked against them.

The entire fracas was dominated by fouls which figured prominently in the final score, Alliance making 18 of their attempts while Salem tallied 12.

McGaffie Leads Attack
Ray McGaffie again was the Quakers' biggest threat. The diminutive forward accounted for nine points before leaving the game in the fourth quarter. Mike Thomas and Bob Jaeger had the second highest totals for the locals, each garnering six tallies. Bob Umberger was the only Quaker player who could battle on even terms with the rangy Alliance passers for rebounds.

When the first stanza ended 18-7 in Alliance's favor, it appeared that

Goshen Defeats Beloit, 35 to 25

The Goshen High cagers chalked up a 35 to 25 victory over Beloit last night at the Beloit gym.

The Goshen passers trailed 7-5 at the end of the initial period, but rallied to lead 17-12 at the half. They put the game on the third stanza, stretching their advantage to 29-18.

R. Stanley and Hobson led the Goshen scoring with 14 and 12 points, respectively. Thell and Behner accounted for the remainder of the winners' tallies. Seruch kept the Beloit crew in the ball game with 11 markers.

The Beloit reserves trounced the Goshen subs 29-17.

Goshen will meet North Jackson tonight in a home tilt.

Assistant Considered For Akron U. Position

AKRON, Jan. 11.—Otis Douglas, Jr., an assistant who accompanied Thomas A. (Spook) Dowler to Akron university two years ago, was rated today as the No. 1 choice to succeed Dowler as the Zippers' head football coach.

The 33-year-old Dowler, backfield star for Colgate university from 1929 through 1931, resigned yesterday after Akron's athletic board decided not to renew his contract.

Athletic Director Leslie Hardy said Douglas would be given first consideration for the coaching position and no other applications would be accepted until it was determined whether Douglas would receive the appointment.

BOWLING RESULTS

The Sanitary Foremen swept three games from the F. O. E. last night in the Federal league to take a one-game lead over Meissner's Service bowlers, who dropped two to the National Brass and Copper outfit at the Masonic temple alleys. A 225 score in the first game aided Hempstead to turn in a 610 total for the Brass five.

The third-place Brownies Service crew remained only two games out of first place by taking two out of three.

Wednesday, Jan. 15, is the deadline for all entries and entry fees for the women's annual bowling tournament. For the convenience of captains and other bowlers, the city secretary, Carrie Slagle, will be at the Masonic temple alleys Wednesday evening from 7 to 10.

Three from the Sanitary Shippers. The Ohio Edison Dodgers kept in the first division, trimming the K. of C. keggers three straight. In the Grade Ladies' loop, the Ford V-8's trounced Finney's three straight at Grate's alleys last evening while the second-place Brownies kept the pace by trimming the Eagles in all three frames.

The Church Budget made a clean sweep over Endres-Gross and the A. A. took two out of three games from the Salem Cab. Polsky's strengthened their lead on third place by downing the Damascus Lumber three straight.

The Washingtonville I. O. O. F. swept three games from the Bliss Co. five in a postponed National league match.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

Snowball Open

If there is a three-inch snowfall in Kansas City tomorrow, the Old Mission Golf club plans a snowball open. Play will be with a red tennis ball, instead of a golf ball; instead of holding out putts, a player must hit the pin. Snowshoes and ear muffs will be standard equipment.

Near and Far

Bezard Dept. From Gonzaga U. comes word that (a) it isn't going to de-emphasize football (as we reported), and (b) its press agent wasn't fired as the first step in that direction, but for another reason entirely. Sorry, gents.

The Sonja Henie show drew $316,000 in ten Chicago performances. The Brooklyn Young Men's Chamber of Commerce is giving Albrecht Red Earber an award tonight for the man under 25 who did the most for flatbush last year.

Short and Snappy

An argument over assistants, and not salary trouble, is the reason Frank Leahy hasn't signed that new five-year Boston college contract.

A private poll of Southwest conference coaches reveals the boys think Jess Neely at Rice turned in the outstanding job out there last season.

It's the Truth

If interviewed on the subject, Gabby Hartnett probably would say: "Dizzy Dean showed more speed signing his new contract than he showed me in the three years I had him."

NOVA IMPRESSIVE IN COMEBACK WIN OVER IRISH BOXER

Gives Comiskey Bad Beating In 10-Round Bout; Asks Shot at Conn

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The first thing Lou Nova did after his smashing 10-round victory over Pat Comiskey at the Garden last night was rush for the microphone and try to thank the doctors and nurses who cured him of the disease that nearly closed his fighting career.

The mike had just gone dead. The next thing Nova did was demand an immediate bout with Billy Conn of Pittsburgh. That, he said, would produce a "real contender" for Joe Louis' heavyweight title.

This time it was Promoter Mike Jacobs' right ear that appeared to have gone dead.

Mike already has signed Conn to meet Louis in a big outdoor show next June.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Theatre Attractions

Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr in a scene from "Comrade X" at the State Sunday through Tuesday.

"Comrade X", featuring Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr, a comedy on Communism, opens a week of outstanding films at the State, showing Sunday through Tuesday.

The story of an American newspaperman and an ardent girl Communist, the picture also features Felix Bressart, Eva Arden, Oscar Homolka, Sig Ruman and Natasha Lytess, Vladimir Sokoloff and Edgar Barrier.

A drunken, ambitious bum in Russia, Gable, as a former newspaperman, finds himself being blackmailed by Bressart, a porter. The porter believes the newspaperman to be the correspondent, Comrade X, whose embarrassing stories about the Soviet have put him on the "preferred" list—if the Communists can find him.

The porter blackmails the newspaperman into taking the former's daughter, played by Hedy Lamarr, to America. Her love of Communism, his love of her and her tentative father land them all in a death cell. Their escape depends on the newspaperman's possession of a film negative.

Back In Form

Bette Davis' "The Letter" in which she returns to the "baddie" roles which brought her fame, shows at the State Wednesday and Thursday. Miss Davis, who has already established a record for Academy award-winning performances, makes the Somerset Maugham story a film hit with her supple work. Also featured are Herbert Marshall, playing the difficult role of the husband, and James Stephenson, whose work as the defending lawyer is so good, critics are marking him down for the Academy's supporting players award. Frieda Inescourt, Gale Sondergaard and Bruce Lester have supporting parts.

The newest screen comedy team, Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas, are seen in "This Thing Called Love", at the State Friday and Saturday, with Binnie Barnes, Alyn Joslyn, Gloria Dickson, Lee J. Cobb and Gloria Holden in the supporting cast.

Concluding at the State tonight is the technicolor, "Chad Hanna", romance of circus life in the last century, with Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour and Linda Darnell.

The Grand

The Grand's main feature on the Sunday double bill is Edward G. Robinson's film, "Dispatch From Reuters", story of the beginning of the Jules Reuter newsgathering agency, first world-wide newsgathering and disseminating system in history. Playing the title role, Robinson has Eddie Albert, Edna Best, Albert Basserman, Gene Lockhart, Otto Kruger, Montagu Love, Nigel Bruce and James Stephenson.

The second feature is "The Phantom Submarine," with Anita Louise, Bruce Bennett, John Tyrell and Oscar O'Shea, mystery thriller of a search for sunken treasure and a fantastic but dangerous plot to smash American defenses by use of a secret submarine base.

Wednesday only, the Grand will present: "A Night at Earl Carroll's," with Ken Murray, Lillian Cornell, J. Carrol Nash, Rose Hobart, Brenda and Cobina of the Bob Hope radio show, and Betty McLaughlin; and "Lucky Devils," with Richard Arlen, Andy Devine and Dorothy Lovett as newsreel cameramen and a reporter.

Friday and Saturday's feature will be a Three Mesquites western, "Under Texas Skies," with Robert Livingston, Bob Steele and Rufe Davis.

At the Grand tonight is Roy Rogers in "Young Bill Hickok."

Levey, New Orleans consulting engineer, is a transparent, antiseptic adhesive tape made from common starch under water, and coated with curative chemicals.

Today's Lesson in Flag Etiquette

● The flag must not be used as a table cloth. Nothing but the Bible should rest upon the flag.

● The flag should never be used to decorate platforms or stands, or draped in any fashion for decorative purposes.

● To salute the flag, persons in civilian clothes should stand at attention, place the hat with the right hand over the left breast. Persons attired in military uniform should execute the right hand salute.

● No other flag should be hoisted above the American flag except a church pennant, which can be flown from the masthead above the Stars and Stripes when religious services are in progress in a military chapel or aboard a U. S. Navy ship.

● In displaying the flags of two or more nations, all flags should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size.

This is the second of a series of five illustrated daily lessons in "Flag Etiquette" offered to the readers of The Salem News in cooperation with the national department of Americanism, Veteran of Foreign Wars of the United States.

These illustrated instructions are based on national flag code regulations, as approved by representatives of a large number of patriotic and civic bodies and endorsed by the United States army and the United States navy.

These rules constitute the unwritten law of the flag and this feature is presented with the hope it will prove helpful in creating in the hearts and minds of American citizens a greater reverence for the Stars and Stripes and the principles for which it stands.
